How to Say I Love You!

Say it to them

Do you tell your children you love them? Especially your older ones?

Write them a note

Again, a truly simple way to express love, but take a moment and scrawl some simple things that you love about your child on it.

Make their favorite meal

Sometimes we get into a rut of always serving the same thing or not thinking about what our family loves the most.

Schedule one-on-one time

I have had to be ultra-intentional with my one-on-one times with my children.

Give them your time

In little ways.

Turn off the media

My husband told me a statistic that he had read regarding people and their smart phones: Most people are never more than 3 feet from their phones most of the time. Imagine that. Three feet.

Congratulations. Thank you

Notes from the Principal

Black history month commemorates the significant events and achievements of the African-American population of the United States. This tradition marked its beginning officially from 1976. It is celebrated in the month of February in the United States of America. It celebrates all the historic events from 1915, wherein the thirteenth amendment of the American constitution abolished slavery in the US. Please take time, to share with your children, the importance of equality and respecting the uniqueness and diversity of all people and our Voyager Core Value of Unity in Diversity.
